Returns should normally be submitted through:

NonStopAuction facilitates the returns process, but the legal obligations concerning the sale of goods generally remain with the seller.

1. Item not received

If an item has not arrived within the seller's stated delivery window, the buyer should contact the seller through NonStopAuction.

The seller must provide reasonable information concerning dispatch and delivery.

Where tracking exists, the tracking information may be used to determine the status of the shipment.

Where no tracking is available, the seller may be required to provide alternative evidence of dispatch.

Where the seller cannot establish that the item was delivered, the seller may remain responsible for the loss, subject to applicable law and the particular circumstances.

2. Item significantly not as described

A buyer may request a return where an item materially differs from the seller's description.

Examples may include:

- a materially different item;
- undisclosed significant damage;
- counterfeit goods;
- materially incorrect condition information;
- missing components that were represented as included.

The seller must cooperate with the return process.

3. Damaged items

Buyers should report damage as soon as reasonably possible and provide photographs or other evidence where requested.

Where damage occurred during shipping, the seller should normally pursue the relevant carrier claim where appropriate.

The existence of a carrier claim does not necessarily remove the seller's obligations toward the buyer.

4. Change-of-mind returns

Business sellers

Where a seller is acting as a trader and the transaction is subject to UK distance-selling cancellation rules, the consumer may have a statutory right to cancel within the applicable cancellation period.

For qualifying goods contracts, this is generally 14 days from the day after the consumer receives the goods.

The fact that the item was sold through an online auction does not automatically remove this right because the statutory public-auction exception generally requires consumers to have the possibility of attending the auction in person.

Business sellers must comply with applicable statutory cancellation and refund obligations.

Private sellers

Private sellers are generally not required to accept returns solely because a buyer changes their mind.

However, this does not remove a seller's liability where the item was materially misdescribed, defective in circumstances where the law provides a remedy, counterfeit, unlawful or otherwise subject to a legal claim.

5. Return shipping

Where a buyer is exercising a statutory cancellation right, the applicable legal rules regarding return postage and reimbursement will apply.

Where a return is required because an item is materially not as described, defective or otherwise the seller's responsibility, the seller may be responsible for reasonable return costs.

Where a buyer voluntarily returns an item for another reason and no statutory right applies, the parties may agree who pays return postage.

6. Refunds

Where a refund is agreed or required, the seller must provide the required refund within the applicable legal timeframe.

Where payments were made through NonStopAuction, refunds may be processed through Stripe or the applicable payment mechanism.

NonStopAuction may facilitate or require a refund where permitted by the platform's rules and the available payment mechanisms.

7. Return evidence

NonStopAuction may request:

- photographs;
- videos;
- tracking information;
- proof of postage;
- delivery confirmation;
- communications between buyer and seller;
- listing information;
- other relevant evidence.

Users must not submit false or misleading evidence.

8. Fraudulent or abusive returns

NonStopAuction may restrict or suspend accounts where we reasonably believe a user is abusing the returns system.

Examples include:

- falsely claiming an item was not received;
- returning a different item;
- intentionally damaging an item;
- making repeated dishonest claims;
- manipulating tracking information;
- colluding with another account.

9. Platform intervention

Buyer and seller should first attempt to resolve the issue between themselves.

Either party may request NonStopAuction intervention.

NonStopAuction may make a neutral platform decision based on the evidence available to it.

Platform intervention does not remove statutory legal rights.

10. Statutory rights

Nothing in this policy limits or excludes consumer rights that cannot lawfully be excluded.

Where the law provides a consumer with a greater right than this policy, the law takes precedence.
